Alexander Fain's practice focuses on representing employers and insurers in workers' compensation and first-party insurance claims. Prior to joining Drew, Eckl & Farnham, LLP in 2020, Alexander worked at a boutique healthcare law firm that's primary focus was in medical reimbursement law.

Alexander was born in Columbia, South Carolina, but grew up in Augusta, Georgia. After graduating from high school, Alexander went to Georgia College and State University where he obtained a B.S. in Economics. After college, Alexander obtained his Juris Doctorate from the Georgia State University College of Law along with a Masters of Science in Health Administration from J. Mack Robinson College of Business in 2015.

When Alexander is not advocating for his clients, he is either exploring the city or taking long hikes with his fiancée, Rebecca, and their three dogs.
