Rashad Johnson knew he wanted to be a lawyer ever since he saw the movie Liar Liar, starring Jim Carrey. Since then, he has been able to accomplish that goal and become a Double Dawg at The University of Georgia in the process. During his time at UGA, Johnson was exposed to an array of legal environments that include, but aren't limited to, sports law, pharmaceutical and corporate law with McKesson Corporation, and of course, employment law. Coming out of Law School, he began his legal career with a mid-sized real estate law firm in the Metro Atlanta area. This wide span of experience has allowed Johnson to see the bigger picture in any case and thus best help assist any client to the best of his ability.

Outside of work, Johnson likes to snowboard, spend time with friends and family, cheer on the Braves and Dawgs, and try out eateries around town.
