About

Christina practices exclusively in the area of workers' compensation defense, including the defense of Longshore and Harbor Workers' Compensation Act claims. She received her Bachelor's degree from the University of South Florida in 2004, and started her insurance defense career as a bodily injury claims adjuster in Tampa, Florida. She later moved to Atlanta and earned her law degree from Emory University School of Law in 2009. While in law school, she earned a Transactional Law Certificate with a dual focus in advanced litigation courses.

Throughout her career, Christina has defended employers and insurers in various workers' compensation and liability matters. She also has experience as in-house counsel for a Fortune 500 company. Christina is licensed to practice law in Georgia and Pennsylvania, and is a member of the Georgia Bar's Workers' Compensation section and the Atlanta Bar Association. Christina also speaks at seminars for employers and insurance carriers on various workers' compensation topics.

Outside of work, Christina enjoys spending time with her family and dog, tennis, hiking, glacier climbing, and playing the piano.
