

APPELLATE LAW

Legal disputes don't always end once a verdict has been issued, and whether we're helping you defend a favorable outcome or a challenging case that's less than ideal, appellate law requires strategic analysis and a comprehensive understanding of the law.

The attorneys at Drew Eckl & Farnham have a wide range of experience, and can help lead our clients through the appellate process.

Preparing for Appeals Begins Early

Appeals can be made smoother if legal professionals plan ahead. Our appellate attorneys simplify and manage the process by identifying and counseling clients on potential appellate issues, before, during and after trial.

By drafting briefs and arguing significant legal issues at trial, our attorneys strive to ensure that the trial court gets it right the first time. But if an appeal is filed, our attorneys have a keen knowledge of the facts and the legal issues that need to be addressed because they have handled the case from the beginning. This is a distinct advantage that we provide to our clients.

Appellate Law for Every Court and Area of Practice

From the Supreme Court of the United States to state appellate courts across the country, the attorneys of Drew Eckl & Farnham have the experience and acumen to draft briefs and present oral argument to appellate courts at every level. Our legal professionals are skilled at

RELATED ATTORNEYS

Neil Brunetz
Dan Cauley
Joseph C. Chancey
James F. Cook, Jr.
Joi Siler King
Terry L. Long
Garret W. Meader
Cameron Poole
David L. Rusnak

drafting amicus curiae briefs, which ensure that the client is fully represented and spoken for, regardless of the nature of the case.

Appeals happen, and our attorneys will provide the counsel and legal acumen you've come to expect from Drew Eckl & Farnham.

Related Insights

- Paul Grote Wins Eleventh Circuit Affirmance of Summary Judgment in Slip and Fall Case, News, Results
- Litigation and Medical Funding: The Often Overlooked but Critical Distinction Between Discoverability and Admissibility, Journal
- "Future-Proof" Your Company: Effective Business Succession Planning, Journal
- Supreme Court of Georgia Oral Arguments in February, Journal
- What You Say Could Be "At Issue" – Waiver of the Attorney-Client Privilege in Bad Faith Cases, Journal
- The WC-104: Strict Compliance Is Key, Journal
- Workers' Compensation Liability Arising Out Of Recreational Or Social Events: Its All Fun And Games Until Someone Gets Hurt, Journal
- No Notice of Potential Litigation, No Possible Spoliation, Journal
- Ecm's And Spoliation: The Importance Of An Accurate Record, Journal
- Spoliation Of Evidence – Who Must Contemplate Litigation, Journal
- Observe And Report: Potential Liability For Private Entities Based On Arrests Made By Law Enforcement Officers, Journal
- Is The Dwelling The Insured's Residence?, Journal
- In-Home Medical Care From Your Spouse: Does Saying "I Do" Mean You Can't Ask "How Much?", Journal
- Coverage Disputes: The Procedurally Safe Method (And The Method Preferred By Georgia Appellate Courts) Is For The Insurer To Defend Its Insured Under A Reservation Of Rights, And Seek Declaration Of Coverage In Separate Action, News
- Atlanta Federal District Court Upholds One-Year Suit Limitation In Mold Case, News